

You can add Animal Victory Disaster And Abuse Fund to your will:

To add a non-profit to a will, you don't need a separate form; you simply need to explicitly list the non-profit organization as a beneficiary within your will document, including its full legal name and tax identification number (EIN) to ensure accuracy; most will forms have a section to designate beneficiaries which can include charities.

Key points to remember when adding a non-profit to a will:

- Identify the organization clearly:
Provide the full legal name of the non-profit, including any relevant chapters or divisions.
- Include the EIN:
Always list the non-profit's Employer Identification Number (EIN) to avoid confusion with similar organizations.
- Specify the asset allocation:
State what specific asset or percentage of your estate you want to donate to the non-profit.
